

Today
Mr. Borah Wanders Off
3 Billion for Prosperity
Sits Big Airship
Control for the Few
By Arthur Brisbane

SENATOR BORAH, of Idaho, says he will not attend the Republican National Convention. Senator Borah will have nothing further to do with any conference about a Republican national plank on resuming prohibition to the people. Friends of the administration wonder how far from the reservation Senator Borah will wander. There might be a repetition of the Theodore Roosevelt bull-moosing that defeated President Taft for re-election, making certain the election of Woodrow Wilson, and various things that followed.

Mr. Merryle Stanley Kuyper writes convincingly on the national property loan of five billions, suggested by W. R. Hearst a year ago. That sum, distributed in wages for useful work, would do more than anything else could do to restore prosperity. In the opinion of many that underlain business and economic facts. Various suggestions have been made in imitation of Mr. Hearst's suggestion, a one billion fund, a two billion fund, etc. It is foolish to make two bites of a cherry.

Some critics say a five billion dollar fund would make it impossible to balance the budget. It would not, but if it did, what of it? The Pennsylvania railroad does not balance its budget when it borrows fifty-five million dollars to complete the electrification of its road from New York to Philadelphia at a time when it does not earn fixed charges.

But it does better than balance its budget, it completes work in which millions have already been invested, provides for more than 1500 men and shows courage.

The United States didn't balance its budget in the war when it borrowed at the rate of ten billion dollars a year, and shipped one lump sum of ten thousand million dollars to Europe, never to come back.

The five billion dollar fund could easily be provided through the machinery of the Federal Reserve Board, and would be well invested in useful production, besides stimulating prosperity and increasing employment. The billions, so gayly raised in war, might as well have been thrown in the Atlantic ocean. There was no talk about budget-balancing then.

Because of private initiative and courageous investment, aviation makes progress, although our government does not experiment, as other nations do, with aviation problems, or defray their cost.

The United Aircraft Transport Corp., which leads in American aviation, thanks to the financial courage and ability of Charles G. Mitchell and his associates, Bessie Coleman and Boeing, is building 60 new planes in the Seattle Boeing plant, which cost two million dollars. Each plane will carry 10 passengers, besides the pilot, and will weigh 10,000 pounds of mail and express matter, 155 miles an hour average speed.

They will fly regularly from New York to Chicago, with at least seven hours, and from ocean to ocean, with six stops, in 24 hours.

The House of Representatives' ways and means committee votes, 20 to 4, against legislation for information concerning birth control. Therefore the old policy will continue.

The rich, that could afford to have children, can get the birth control information from first class doctors and will continue NOT to have many children.

The poor, that can not afford many children, including poor women married to drunkards and morons, will be told that it is wrong to interfere with the plans of Providence. If the ask why Providence doesn't interfere with the special information for the prosperous class, they will be told: "That is not YOUR business."

Each day supplies its racketeer death. This time, parked in 171st St. New York, one man is found dead at the wheel of a sedan, and another shot in the back, is sitting in the car's running board. Police say:

"It was a fight about leadership in the Harlem alcohol racket."

The man shot in the mouth, named Milton, known as "Cheese Cake Louie," was alive, and could still talk. He said:

"If I knew who they were I wouldn't tell you."

Dr. Condon Confirms the Story That Local Man Was in on $50,000 Ransom Deal

The theory that the $50,000 ransom payment in the Lindbergh baby kidnapping was engineered by a big Boston bootlegger, aided by run runners in Vineyard Sound, was partly confirmed today by Dr. John F. Condon, the famous "Jafse" of the case.

In a telegram to the Boston Evening American from Becket Dr. Condon declared that the kidnaper with whom he contacted and to whom he paid the money claimed to be from Boston.

The telegram said: "The kidnaper claimed to be from Boston. He then stated he could not be caught because his leader was a high official. He did not state from any place."

During the investigation by Boston Evening American reporters in the Vineyard sector early in April they learned that Dr. Condon, on his first trip to Cuttyhunk by plane, inquired for a man named John and learned that he had not been "down that way" for four years.

Horace Ford Joins Braves

Just before the Braves took the field this afternoon Manager Bill McKechnie announced that Horace Ford, major league star for the past dozen years, is back with the fighting Braves. He announced that they had signed Ford to make provisions for any injuries that might keep him out of baseball for more than 90 days.

Horace Ford first came into the big show at Boston in 1914, when he was a sandlotter. He then joined the Eastern League, moved up to the National League where he has played over a dozen years. Ford is married and at the present time makes his home in Winchester, where he owns a ice cream parlor.

Cincinnati made him a free agent last year.

SMITH DEMANDS IMMEDIATE FEDERAL RELIEF ACTION

HAPPY WARRIOR IN CHALLENGE TO HOOVER

Declares President's Argument
Against Bond Issue Does Not Stand Analysis

New York, May 25 (U.S.)—Former Governor Smith has taken sharp issue with President Hoover over the means by which a huge public works program should be inaugurated to provide unemployment relief.

Challenging Hoover's recent statement that a federal bond issue for such a program would unseat the bond market, and that government money should be used at this time only for projects which will be self-supporting, Smith declared:

1—That the President's distinction between revenue producing and non-revenue producing projects is without validity.

2—That Hoover's argument for using federal credit through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation rather than issuing a federal bond issue does not stand analysis from the point of view of unsettling the bond market.

IMMEDIATE NEED

The for a Democratic presidential nominee added:

"What is more important is the main thing, and that is the need of finding immediate and effective employment for millions of people."

"This problem transcends all technicalities, all hair-splitting, and all fine-point theories of finance."

"I would prefer not to see this done through the reconstruction finance corporation, if the President insists upon it, let him have his way. If it is to be done through the reconstruction finance corporation, let Congress get a maximum sum up to which the President may thereafter issue bonds and let the President decide on the allocation for different kinds of industries and the officers of the reconstruction finance corporation take care of the details."

BEER TAX KEY

Smith reiterated his previous proposal that the cost of a large public works program be met by a beer tax, a sales tax, or both, explaining:

"No one in his senses doubts that a reasonable beer tax over a period of a few years, would take care of as much of a public works bond issue as is needed. This is also true of the general manufacturers' sales tax."

Concerning President Hoover's attitude Smith said:

"I am entirely unable to follow the President's distinction between the issuance of industrial bonds and the use of federal credit."

"The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is a government corporation. It is backed by the credit of the United States."

TREASURY PAYS

"Where does the cash come from? So far it has come from the United States Treasury, in part through a direct appropriation to Congress and in part by the corporation borrowing from the Treasury. Of course the initial capital and the subsequent borrowing is expected to be paid back by those who borrow from the reconstruction finance corporation, but nevertheless the Treasury must obtain the money in the first instance by selling Treasury tax notes or certificates, or by debiting the Treasury balances, so that tax note certificates or bonds must be sold to defray other expenses."

And the earth, perhaps, uninhabitable.

The Senate says you shall pay a tax of 10 per cent on automobile tires. Your Congress, that refuses a very moderate sales tax that will not perceptibly affect merchants or buyers, proceeds to pick out certain industries for a heavy sales tax.

Taxes on your tires, on your theater tickets, a tax planned on automobiles, heavy taxes already on gasoline. A small sales tax on everything except foodstuffs would be more sensible.

Rio De Janeiro announces that the Brazilian credit destroyed $20,744,000 of coffee last week, making more than six and a half million sacks of coffee destroyed recently. It is a fight to the "oversupply."

In many places in the United States, you may see fresh fish thrown overboard to keep up the price, or, as in New Jersey, men who were born in New York city, were found dead at his hotel last night with a bullet in his head.

Police reported the case as suicide and said Nordlinger had been in ill health.

ondary politicians, preoccupied to the exclusion of all thought of country, in their little personal fortunes. They incline ready ear to the prompting of every selfish interest in their respective neighborhoods. But they have no heed for the call of America and the large duties of the hour.

Nero fiddling while Rome burned was neither so cynical nor so callous as the Senate and the House of Representatives playing their contemptible game of politics in utter disregard of the nation's plight and of the irretrievable damage they are doing to their country and their countrymen.

NEVER has a Congress been so denounced by every respectable organ of public opinion as the present Congress. From one end of the country to the other a storm of criticism is raging—a storm of angry and exasperated popular rebuke.

But it does not seem to reach the LaGuardias and the Patmans and the Rankins, not to mention others, who share an evil eminence in the disgraceful melee of the present session.

It seems impossible to bring to bear upon our elected representatives the sober judgment and good conscience of the nation. Can nothing shake them out of their deaf obsession with their petty and demagogic careers?

The thought occurs to me that a committee of outstanding citizens, representing every state in the Union, and selected upon strictly non-partisan lines, might be called into being—AND QUICKLY. This committee could then call a NATIONAL MASS MEETING IN THE NAME OF AMERICA. TO BE HELD UPON THE STEPS OF THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

An opportunity would thus be afforded for a sober expression of the intense disappointment and disgust, which the country feels in its betrayal by Congress.

Nothing disruptive or destructive, nothing inflammatory or vain need be uttered. The times are too grave for anything but responsible speech.

PERHAPS IN THIS WAY there could be brought home to our trifling and unworthy representatives some glimmering sense of the duties they owe the country.

Perhaps IN NO OTHER WAY can a sense of patriotic responsibility be awakened in the members of the present Congress.

SOMETHING MUST BE DONE.

The power of America cannot be suffered to sleep in a period so critical as this. If once this power is stirred to display and expression, even Congress, which surveys with composure and insensibility the ruin of the country, WILL NOT HAVE THE COURAGE TO FACE ITS ANGER.

the means and methods of accomplishing their objects.

BERATING Congress, denouncing Congress, indicting Congress indiscriminately will not do any good. Congress is like an audience in a theatre which is in a panic. Aimless shouting will only increase the panic.

Congress needs calmness and confidence and the only way to give it these is through competent, constructive leadership.

If Congress never definitely what it ought to do I believe its standards are high enough and its patriotic spirit true enough to make it do these things.

Consequently the duty of those who would have Congress act soundly and constructively is not merely to denounce Congress, but to urge upon Congress forcefully and effectively a definite program which will tend to restore confidence, stimulate business and relieve unemployment.

Congress, as Mr. Colby says, is being denounced now, from one end of the country to the other. What good will it do to add more denunciations, even if it be upon the steps of the Capitol.

Identification was all the situation needed, Congress would have been put on the right path a long time ago.

Obviously, then, something more is needed, something definite, something concrete, something convincing. If we go to Congress it should not be to denounce the Senate and the House, but to appeal to these bodies and to submit to them a sound program supported by sound and sincere representative citizens from all walks of life and from all parts of the country.

THE only reason that I can see for not proposing such a definite program is that we ourselves cannot agree on one, and if we cannot agree on one, how can we blame Congress for not agreeing on one?

There is not the shadow of a doubt that if a sufficient number of representative people of this country will agree on a sound constructive program, that Congress, whose basic object is to help the people of this country, will agree on practically the same program and the situation will be solved.

There are a lot of competent and conscientious men in Congress. Especially is the leadership in the House and the leadership in the Senate sound and constructive. The confusion in Congress has been caused by an insurgent stampede away from their party leadership.

This defiance of party loyalty and repudiation of proper party leadership is due to the fact that the administration has entirely discredited its leadership by employing it only in the interest of foreign nations and of international bankers and of public exploiters generally.

If the administration had done its duty to its own country and its own people its leadership would not now be repudiated by the House, by the Senate and by the public at large.

Therefore, if anything is to be denounced and indicted, it should be the administration and not the Senators and Congressmen, who are earnestly, even though somewhat misguidedly, trying to do their duty to the nation they represent.

I am not in accord with any movement merely to denounce Congress. I am in favor of submitting to the calm consideration of Congress a definite program which will convince Congress and promote constructive action.

WALSH IN DRIVE FOR SALES TAX

Washington, May 25.—The general sales tax, for which sentiment has been steadily growing throughout the country, will come before the Senate tomorrow when the bill to be introduced by Senator Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts.

The Walsh amendment offers an emergency levy of 1 1/2 per cent on sales, exempting food, clothing, agriculture, necessities and publications.

Walsh in a statement announces his amendment, said the treasury estimated the 1 1/2 per cent tax would yield $33,000,000.

'INVARIABLY HUG,' HE TESTIFIES

But Mrs. Beach Did Not Have on a Nightgown at Time She Danced for Him

By H. K. REYNOLDS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, May 25 (INS).—The Rev. Harold Francis Davidson, 60, on trial on immorality charges, went into a tap dance on the witness stand in consistency court to demonstrate how one of his young lady friends once acted in his presence.

The lady in question was described as Mrs. Betty Beach, a dancer. The rector was questioned concerning testimony given by a prosecution witness charging that Mrs. Beach executed "sensual exercises and dances" in her nightgown for the benefit of the clergyman.

ALWAYS KISSED HIM
"She did an such thing," the Rev. Davidson declared, "she only tapped with her feet."

The rector rose from the witness chair and gave what the amused spectators agreed was a very capable exhibition of tap-dancing.

Rev. Davidson emphatically denied Mrs. Beach was wearing a nightgown at the time. But he admitted he put his arm about her shoulders and kissed her.

"That's an invariable attitude of mine," he said.

The part the dancer played in the rector's strange life was introduced into the trial by Roland Oliver, attorney for the Bishop of Norfolk, the clergyman's prosecutor.

GILES PAID, HE SAYS
Oliver asked Rev. Davidson about evidence obtained by agents for the bishop, indicating that while the rector was sending begging letters to tilted people, telling them his family was starving and without food, he was living around in taxicabs with girls and taking them to cafes and theaters.

"They were all business engagements," the rector said, dismissing the allegations with a wave of his hand.

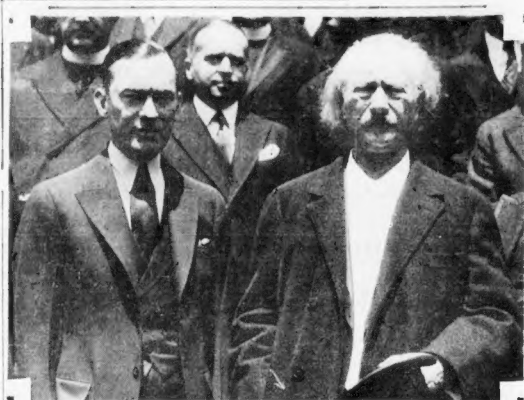

"The girls paid all the bills," the Rev. Wm. Davidson revealed himself in the role of guardian angel, admitting he had "shadowed" Miss Harris on numerous occasions "because she knew so many young men."

"She's very pretty, you know," volunteered Oliver.

the Equitable Bus franchise, which had been the subject of some of the testimony.

"Mr. Mayor, at the time the Equitable Bus Co. received its franchise from the board of city officials, there was no pending bill, and the board of city officials was not asked to consider the franchise," Seabury asked.

"I think there was a franchise," the mayor replied.

"There was no substantial difference between the two applications, was there?" inquired Seabury.

"I have no independent recollection," replied the mayor.

A. J. F. NEEDLE

Seabury asked Walker if it were not true that the service bus company offered to put 150 buses a month into operation against a sum of money offered by the Equitable.

"The best application ever offered for a bus franchise, I recall," the mayor replied, "came from a Long Island company. But when we investigated we found they were in the hay and feed business."

Seabury asked Walker if it were not true that the Service Bus Corporation offered $100,000 security and the Equitable none.

"I don't remember," Walker said, "but I am sure you could not operate a $200,000 business on a $100,000 security—unless you have J. P. Morgan behind you."

"This was not J. P. Morgan behind this," Seabury observed.

"We both know that," Walker retorted.

FOR SCOTLAND

"The recommendation of the Board of Transportation support of the application of the Equitable Bus Co.," Walker explained, "I voted for it because it provided for an initial 3-cent fare."

"Q—I ask you, Mr. Mayor, who you voted for the Equitable Bus franchise?"

'Jimmie' Gives Sympathetic 'Gallery' a Great Show

New York, May 23 (INS)—"I will stop asking me technical questions six years old!" Mayor Walker threw himself back in the witness stand and turned his head irritably from side to side. His face was red and his eyes, when he looked at Samuel Seabury, had a glitter of defiance.

The star witness of the Hofstadter inquiry was not letting a word go, as confident and as witty as his audience had expected. Instead, it was Seabury who kept up a maddeningly calm and smiling fire.

The mayor had only the evident sympathy of the "gallery" to help him.

HISTORICAL WELCOME

The welcome they gave him had something of hysteria in it. His arrival was heralded from far off by bursts of cheers, the flickering of flashlight beams and the high hysterical exclamation of women. His face was flushed about his bright blue collar when he was escorted into the room.

The cheering ceased on and on, members of the chairman of the committee thrashing the crowd with his gavel until a cold douche of baling started to drown it. Whether they were hailing Walker or the committee that had dared question his integrity, nobody could say.

mid-air more than you have to quote the Governor on an appointment of the President of the United States, but nevertheless—

Applauded throughout the rest of his remarks, Seabury asked him again and Walker replied:

"I can only repeat what I said before that I voted for the Equitable franchise because it provided an initial 3-cent fare."

He said he had consistently advised.

Seabury asked Walker if he saw the late Anton W. Burdett at that time vice-president General Electric Co. or a writing agent in the Equitable Co.

"I never saw any such state-ment as I never saw Mr. Burdett in my life," Walker replied. "The only thing I know is that the J. & White Co. knows all over the world, was stilling back the Equitable Bus Company."

SPIT FOR SPAT

Seabury asked Walker if he had known there was no substantial difference between the two applications from J. & White Co. to back the Equitable franchise.

"I do not know any such thing," Walker replied. "And until I hear from Mr. Deane, I won't believe your statement that it is so."

"I don't care what you think," Seabury replied.

"And that goes double," Walker retorted.

Committee member McNaboe started to speak, Seabury protested against the interruption. "During the absence of my opponent, Seabury said, "One at a time, please, I can't answer three or four of you all at once."

And give me the preference," shouted the mayor.

Another violent argument arose between Seabury and the mayor in the course of which the mayor waved his finger at Seabury and shouted:

"Remember—I am still the mayor of New York!"

There was an uproar, in which McNaboe said, addressing the mayor:

"I am sorry he ever called you 'you'."

"Thank you very much," Walker replied. "It's been a pleasure to answer you here."

"In spite of all these statements, I'm glad to see you here," Seabury said.

"Judge, you're our lawyer—nothing more."

Walker, during an excited speech about the connection of Burdett with the Equitable application, denied he had ever summoned Owen D. Young to find out about it.

At that time you were counsel for the bus magnates, isn't it?" he shouted at Seabury.

"Never mind that. We will have the attack on me later," Seabury retorted.

Walker denied he ever had discussed the franchise with Wm. H. Woodin.

"Q—When the franchise was granted you knew, did you not, that the Equitable's only chance of securing financial support was by selling stock? A—I did not, and you know it, too."

"Council is manifestly antagonistic," Walker exclaimed.

Walker denied he had ever been in touch with Charles E. Mitchell, member of the National City Bank, to finance the Equitable Bus Co.

FOR CITY TOO MUCH

He said he did ask Mitchell to make a study as to whether the Equitable franchise were financially sound. The traction interests had denied the going of several of the banks to the Equitable Co.

He said Mitchell replied the franchise was not financially because it favored the city too much.

He said that more than a year was occupied by the traction company in fighting the Equitable franchise before the state transit commission.

"I went to Mitchell," Walker said, "to find out if that franchise was all right. He told me it was unfinancial because it did not provide a feasible fare. You know what that means—a fare increase."

"That never happened," Walker answered when Seabury asked him if he ever told Hastings he required his assistance to get his stock in the Equitable before he left his financial backing.

Woe then proceeded to describe what he said happened at the board of estimate while the Equitable franchise was pending—"attended," he said, "by representatives of the traction companies, disappointed politicians and Communists."

"I never knew what Hastings' interest in the Equitable was," Walker said.

He said he had heard of Fazel, Equitable banker, but never had heard of J. Allan Smith, an Equitable agent who is alleged to have bought a $10,000 letter of credit for the mayor prior to the latter's visit to Europe in 1927.

Q—Did you ever ask you to support the Equitable bus application? A—He knew better than that.

Q—Did you hear that those connected with the Equitable franchise testified to an investigation by the deputy commissioner in Feb. 1929, A—I did not.

"Who's an Irish hero?" Walker demanded, "you or the chairman, I am."

"You're making a speech, Mr. Mayor," Seabury said.

"Well, they're good speeches, Judge," Walker retorted.

"Did you ever listen to one of them?"

"It's a better speech than you made in Cincinnati," Walker retorted, while the crowd laughed.

"And I don't have to go to Cincinnati to make speeches, either."

The hearing adjourned for session recess at 12:15 p. m. Eastern standard time. It is resumed at 1:15 standard time.

LINDY READY TO TELL DETAILS OF HOAX

Trenton, N. J., May 23 (INS)—Col. Lindbergh will actively cooperate with the New Jersey authorities in prosecuting John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, Va., boot-builer for giving false information during the search for the Lindbergh baby kidnappers, from the Hawk said today.

Tomorrow, Hawk said, he would begin presenting the case of the confessed boot negotiator to the grand jury and he felt confident that the case would be returned probably this week.

Curtis, who was arrested himself with a machine gun when he went into the search for the kidnapers on the Col. Schwarzkopf of the New Jersey police revealed.

"Feeling that self-protection was necessary in case the kidnapers should attempt an attack of any kind at sea, or in case of an attempt to kidnap Col. Lindbergh," Curtis said.

"The colonel borrowed the weapon from a man with him."

CURTIS STILL IN JAIL

Curtis remained in the Flemington, N. J., jail today without appearing to make any further move through contact with his negotiator on $10,000 but who he was said after conferring his negotiations with a friend in New York.

For the first time since the entry of Curtis into the case as a "negotiator" seeking contact with the kidnapers, Col. Schwarzkopf issued bulletins which described from his usual questioning-and-answer method.

DENIES STORY OF CHECK

He asserted the statements of Curtis were given to the press by him, and that "at no time was any check made out to Col. Lindbergh for $10,000 or $10,000."

He said he was in connection with the Curtis negotiator referred to by Capt. F. C. Luchman of the Trenton station that Curtis showed him such a check. Curtis used the March several times.

Col. Schwarzkopf also said Curtis did produce any of the $10,000 currency, nor did he ever of Lindbergh any portion of the baby's clothing, in proof he was dealing with men file representatives.

He added Curtis likewise did not show him any photograph of the baby taken by the kidnapers.

All these points directly contradicted statements made by Capt. Luchman, who said Curtis told him of showing the ransom bill and the photograph and part of the baby's clothes to Lindbergh.

Interest in the Equitable was "Walker said."

Wets Going Places

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

Among other essential commodities overhauled by Congress is patience.

Like the ostrich that hid from the man for five days, the boys are going to get their tail feathers unbuttoned.

What we need now are political muds. Legislators who think in the open, argue in the open and vote in the open.

Prohibition right now is like Charles's Aunt. We saw that show 28 years ago and it was the best farce ever written.

But the wets are gaining ground with every caucus. We met Senator Gilkey yesterday after the latest poll and he was in tall feather. He said:

"We're stepping out great. We just stole another two-bottle man away from the drys."

That's fine, Senator. But it's the one-bottle prohibitionists who are the toughest.

5 BILLION LOAN IS URGED BY REP. PRATT

The $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan advocated by the House majority was urged today by Representative C. F. Nelson Pratt of Saugus speaking in Gardner Auditorium at the State House.

Appearing before the joint committee of ways and means and taxation, Representative Pratt lashed out against "gross incompetency" of municipal government, and opposed cutting of State employees' salaries.

"If the Federal Congress," he said, "would do the job man-fashion, it would hurry up and enact legislation for the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan issue, which would immediately put to work 4,500,000 men."

FLING AT FITZGERALD

"Since the days of Gov. Coolidge we have allowed to creep into our state government a great deal of expense. I'm casting no aspersions on our present governor any more than the governors who preceded him, and I speak as a Republican."

"The state, cities and counties should curtail expenditures. If the municipal governments of the state had not been grossly incompetent, they would not be here crying for help."

Without mentioning any names, Rep. Pratt took a cutting from the Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, who yesterday appeared before the joint committee urging a reduction of legislators' salaries. The hearing, which was resumed today, was on a reconsideration of the House rejection of Governor Fitzgerald's proposed amendment, tobacco and slot drink tax, and also his recent special message recommending additional taxation.

"NO SLASH WARRANTED"

"If we, as legislators," said Representative Pratt, "must be criticized by a man who went into City Hall a poor man and came out a millionaire and banker, it is about time we say something in our own defense. If the Legislature is to be a rich man's club, as the retired officials who were not so retiring yesterday as to order us to cut our salaries, would have it, then it would be government not of representation, but of misrepresentation. Legislators' salaries are certainly not large enough to warrant any slashing."

Demands Grow for Federal Bond Issue

Washington, May 25 (U.S.)—Demands for a huge federal prosperity bond issue to finance a great public works program and put hundreds of thousands of men to work continue to spread in Congress and plans went forward today in Senate and House to expedite action.

Outstanding overnight developments included:

1.—Speaker John N. Garner announced his $2,000,000,000 program would be in bill form by Thursday.

2.—Senator Wagner (D.) of New York, announced he would introduce in the Senate today the $2,000,000,000 relief plan worked out by a special committee of Democrats.

3.—Plans went forward for a congressional mass meeting to be held Thursday night.

4.—Administration forces in Congress spread rumors that President Hoover would veto any bill carrying provisions for a bond issue for federal projects.

5.—Representative Ralph Hays (R.) of Washington introduced demands for a $5,000,000,000 federal prosperity loan bond in a warning, people were undermanned and want work but no duty.

6.—President Hoover conferred with Secretary Mills, Eugene Meyer, Jr., governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, on Reconstruction Finance Corporation plan.

7.—Social unrest will increase and indignation meetings be held all over the country should Congress adjourn without passing a comprehensive relief program.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, warned.

THIS IS LIFE

FATHERS OF THE MEN

TEACH A TEACHER AS SCHOOL YEAR ENDS

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

I WONDER if anything gives one more insight into human nature than the end of a school term. I know that busy adults are inclined to think of school boys and school girls and their teachers as beings removed, somehow, from the world of actual ment, wrapped in cotton wool, so to speak, happy, carefree, and untroubled. But if the father of the man—the mother of the woman—there is a good deal to be learned about human nature in the methods and reactions of these grown-ups still in the larval state.

We end things a little earlier at Technology than at other colleges, as our students are likely to be pretty busy during the summer, and at present I am up to my ears in the activities of the winding up of the term. When one has some 80 students in four groups, each of whom is doing different work, and in addition to this are responsible for as many written papers, so many tests and examinations, so much work and the like, there is a certain amount of inescapable bookkeeping if I am to be sure that no one is going to slip under the wire leaving a lot of work undone.

Some of Dependable 90 Tricky

There are people who profess to believe that all this bookkeeping is degrading to "real education," which ought to be a matter of pure spirit and voluntary activity, but I confess that I have never been able to see how education could escape the minimum amount of organization and bookkeeping which is common to every successful enterprise. A student's personality goes some distance in telling his teacher or his employer whether or not he is any good, but a series of weekly grades, or a series of business reports, go a long way farther. So many people in this world do not measure up to their pleasant personalities, so far as accomplishment is concerned.

These 90 men run the gamut of youthful human nature. There are the dependable boys whom you can count on as you can count on the August eclipse. Not always brilliant but infinitely solid. They are there when you want them, and a very comforting feeling it is to know it. There are the boys too brilliant, too exceptional (in their own conceit) to get their work done on time, to do it with reasonable care, to follow the instructions the others have granted. They will always have a thin time of it, until some body, preferably an employer, knocks it out of them.

There are the slick boys who on the assumption that if they keep out of sight and, like Br'er Fox, ain't sayin' nuffin, you will forget them and all will be well. Sometimes they will pretend never to have heard of the assignments and will be endlessly grieved to find that they are going to be held to them.

And there are the slow boys, who at the end of the term weeks behind-hand and come flying in on the last day of the term to demand make-up examinations, which they should have asked for weeks ago, and try desperately to cram a month's work into two days.

Average "Reg'lar Fellows" Satisfying

And there are the worried ones, the over-conscientious ones, who have had all that was coming to them in the way of conference and advice, who insist on crowding in with last-minute appointments which they do not really need—just to settle their minds. Often, these are the clever ones, as well. I sometimes think that I would swap all my clever ones—most of whom have some little instability in them, or they wouldn't be clever—for a class composed entirely of honest, dependable, ordinary men, who do what is expected of them when it is expected of them, who do not try to do too much, who make no pretence to more righteousness than is necessary, and who get their work done by themselves without fussing about the instructor or the motto about the flame. For these "reg'lar fellows," I am convinced, shall maintain the state of the world.

Yes, you learn a lot about human nature in these last days of school. And probably the boys learn a lot about themselves and about you. It is a pity that such an experience, repeated so regularly once or twice a year for so many years—all through high school and college—should stop short when one leaves school and never be repeated again.

Most of us would be the better for an annual auditing of our books. Not our financial books alone—for that is not an uncommon experience—but our intellectual books, our spiritual books, our books that exhibit the repeated and cumulative grades we should receive for dependability, perseverance, promptness, efficiency and the like. Or the other grades, for laziness, slackness, sloth, procrastination, tergiversation, slyness and general cussedness.

They're All Due for a Shock at 30

But, alas! once we are out of school there are few examination days, and those come so unexpectedly and irregularly and infrequently that I doubt whether we get the full value of them. Supposing that once every 10 years we were to have a thorough auditing of personality, to see whether we have slumped and backed! It would not be a pleasant experience for most of us, but if we expected it, knew that it was coming, we should all make a far better record than we do nowadays.

None of these youngsters can have the slightest idea what a shock it will be to them when they suddenly find themselves 30. Still less, what a shock when they reach 40. It is hard for them to realize that the examination they will pass at 30 or 40 will demand incurably upon an unconsidered day-to-day habits they think so little of. A little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep... or the opposite! Character at 30 or 40 is an accumulation of unconsidered trifles, and it all depends on their daily habits whether they are, at the age, going to possess a mature and intelligent and competent personality, or whether they are going to be 30 in body but only 20 in mind and spirit and competence.

If they knew that the examination was coming they would prepare to take it. Today they grubble at the little preliminary examinations which keep them up to the mark during their school days. Really they are luckier than they know. For the time will come when they will find their examination suddenly upon them, like a thief in the night, and so many of them will not be prepared.

BATTLING MENACING BLAZE IN FUR SHOP

Two views of part of the large force of fighters, summoned by two alarms today, abating the flames in the building at Causeway and Lancaster sts. Huge clouds of acid smoke from the burning fur in one of the several stores housed in the building gave firemen considerable trouble, three of them being overcome. More than a score of employees in the various shops were routed by the fumes. (Staff photos.)
